

Chaplain's Chat

Dear Friends, Greetings and Peace to you in this autumn season! Here are a few thoughts for fall:

O: Observe the many beautiful and changing colors of autumn all around you.

C: Call a friend or former neighbor you haven't spoken to for a while.

T: Take time to listen to a friend who needs to share and give them encouragement.

O: Offer thanks to God for His many daily blessings and His wonderful Love.

B: Be sure to make prayer and daily Bible reading part of your daily routine.

E: Enjoy sitting outside and talking short walks on beautiful fall days.

R: Reflect on the many wonderful relationships you have in family and among friends!

Hats Off

You don't have to be a fan of Lewis Carroll's Alice's Adventures in Wonderland to celebrate Mad Hatter Day on October 6. Carroll attempted to illustrate his book himself but soon turned to famed illustrator John Tenniel for help. It was Tenniel who depicted the Mad Hatter character with a card in his hatband reading, "In this size 10/6." Here, the 10/6 refers not to the date October 6, but the hat's price of 10 shillings and six pence. While the interpretation of the hat card may have been mistaken, the hatter's "madness" is a matter of historical fact.

Don't Be Scared

Each October, scarecrows begin to appear in and around the village of Pietrebais in Belgium. In some years, hundreds of scarecrows appear. In others, a scant dozen or fewer. No one knows why or how the tradition began 21 years ago in the year 2000, but it is a tradition that has continued ever since. They served one purpose: to scare pests like crows away from valuable crops. It seems that these scarecrows have earned a spooky reputation ever since. But in Belgium, there is no need to fear. The scarecrows are often dressed like happy or silly villagers welcoming visitors to Pietrebais.

Now We're Cooking/ Mission ImPASTable

October is Cookbook Month, which means it's time to get into the kitchen and dust off those pots and pans. With an almost infinite number of free recipes available online, cookbooks might seem a thing of the past. Yet while many forms of print media have suffered in the digital age, cookbooks have maintained their popularity and sales are booming. How have cookbooks maintained such popularity? They are often part autobiography of the cooks who write them and part self-help for those who struggle in the kitchen, and they almost always lead to a happy and delicious ending. Even for seasoned chefs, cookbooks provide a means of reinvigorating a stale cooking routine or learning some new tricks of the trade. This doesn't mean that you should go out and buy Buck Peterson's Road Kill Cookbook (unless you want to whip up his signature "Chili Con Carnage"), but you could explore some of these other unique and innovative options. In Last Dinner on the Titanic features a compilation of recipes that were served on that great and ill-fated ocean liner. A ten-course menu featuring oysters, caviar, Lobster Thermidor, Consommé Olga, filet mignon, roast squab, pate de foie gras, and Waldorf pudding was served the very night the iceberg was struck, and recipes for all these dishes and more are found in the cookbook. When Microwave Cooking for One was published in 1999, some reviewers called it the "world's saddest cookbook," but others called its author, Marie T. Smith, "the veritable high priestess of microwave food preparation." Smith demonstrates that the microwave is not merely for reheating leftovers but can prepare everything from pancakes to fried scallops and peach souffle. Adventurous foodies could try Bugs for Beginners. Historians might like Cooking Apicius, recipes from ancient Rome. Mechanics will appreciate Manifold Destiny, which teaches how to cook on your car engine. There is truly a cookbook that appeals to every possible taste.

In 1995, pasta producers from all over the world convened in Rome for the first World Pasta Congress. It was decided that October 25 would be designated World Pasta Day, a day to celebrate the versatility and sheer deliciousness of this global food.
